Initially the colinists that fought british soidiers were militia. The militia consisted of citizens willing to fight for their colonies and liberty. After a while, the colonists created a more formal group which they called the Continintal Army. The leader of this army was George washington. The continental army suffered many harships, not only were they not trained soldiers but they also suffered from a lack of food proper clothing and ammunition. Nonetheless, they had to oppose a strong and powerful army of experienced soldiers that had adequate clothing and weapons.
